TO DEDICATE CHAMBER HERE TUESDAY NIGHT

Fine Program Has Been Arranged by Board of Directors

CROWD IS EXPECTED

Dream of Members Comes True, New Rooms Are All Desired

To celebrate the realization of bright dreams, the Glendale chamber of commerce is inviting its members, approximately 1500, and its prospective 18,500 members, to a reception in its new home, the chamber of commerce building on South Brand boulevard, Tuesday evening. The reception will be held on the ground floor. The rooms of the chamber will be open to visitors Tuesday afternoon.

A fine program over which William H. Reeves, city manager, will preside as master of ceremonies, has been arranged which will include a speech by the new president of the chamber, V. M. Hollister, a vocal solo by Spencer Robinson, mayor of the city, and a roll-call by Miss Myrtle Baldwin, who has been the "party of the first part" in some of the most sensational real estate transactions that have marked the remarkable growth of Glendale during the past 18 months.

Mr. Marquardt, who grew discontented with residence here and went elsewhere to live only to discover that he could be happy only in Glendale, will give some violin solos. Captain D. Ripley Jackson, postmaster-elect, who will soon be functioning, will be there and make announcements of interest. Mattison B. Jones, devoted Mason and Grand High Priest of California, will present new members, and there will be interesting contributions by outside talent, addresses by Judge Gavin W. Craig and Leslie B. Henry, who are no strang-

HOLD HUNDREDS IN BIG DRY RAID IN CHICAGO TODAY

Homes, Clubs, Saloons, Invaded for Evidence Against Owners

CHICAGO, Dec. 19. — Police smashed into homes, clubs and saloons until an early hour today, seizing liquor and throwing owners in jail. Seven hundred and fifty persons, ranging from the social elite of the "Gold Coast" down to the residents of the alleys back of yards, faced police judges.

"Clean up your beat or your job is gone," the chief ordered.

Harry W. Mager, former United States collector of internal revenue for the Chicago district, was one of the last to be arrested. Search warrants were not used in raids on homes. Police refused to listen to pleas of "sanctity of the home" when invasions were made. Following the raid on the Casino club, most exclusive in Chicago, other clubs poured out their lockers.

AGITATION IN JAPAN OVER PACT

TOKIO, Dec. 17 (Delayed).—A wave of agitation against the decisions of the Washington conference on limitation of armaments, which government leaders interpret as part of a domestic political battle with little possible effect on international affairs, is sweeping Japan. A mass meeting has been called in Tokio to protest against conference decisions. Some extremists are advocating a demonstration on the return of the Japanese delegation from Washington.

BOSTON BANKER HAS NEW PLANS

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 19,—R. P. Herrick, Boston banker, has completed a plan for reorganization of the finances of the Philippine Islands based on an intensive study made here at the request of Secretary of War Weeks and with the approval of Major General Leonard Wood, governor of the islands, it was made known today. Herrick is leaving immediately for Washington to lay his plans before officials there.

ORANGE MEN GLAD

POMONA, Dec. 19.—Pomona valley orange growers are rejoicing today over the bountiful rainfall which began here Saturday evening and has continued with few interruptions since that time. The rainfall here at noon was close to 2.50 inches, the largest precipitation of the season.

Real Philosophy of Happiness Is Shown by Mr. Santa Claus

"Santa Claus has discovered the real philosophy of happiness," says James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" tonight. "Giving things away to make for happiness. And Whoever invented him knew something of what is real in life."

And Mr. Foley asks you if you are a go-giver or a go-getter? "You who know the need of the world," he says, "who are strong, capable, the product of years of education and religion and training, who profess humanitarianism and charitableness, are you a go-giver or are you merely a go-getter?"

Henry James in his comments on the news of the day on the editorial page goes back to a discussion on crime, rather a favorite subject with Mr. James. His years of work on newspapers, his acquaintance with courts and judges and his knowledge of the efforts of the law enforcement officers all stand him in good stead in writing on this subject. Mr. James takes up many other subjects in his interesting and educational way.

Dr. Frank Crane writes on Vanderlip's idea of an international banking corporation with a billion dollars capital. He believes it practical. What he says is worth reading. Editorials, features, poetry, paragraphs and the point of view of other editors all go to make a reading editorial page.

RAINFALL GOES TO AN INCH IN HOUR

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—Rain falling on Mt. Wilson at the rate of an inch an hour today spelled flood danger for Southern California valleys. Mt. Wilson observers reported at noon to the weather bureau that 9.35 inches had fallen at 11 o'clock. Since 5 a. m., 5.40 inches had fallen, the heaviest precipitation in those hills within several years. Extensive flood protection construction throughout Southern California during the past several years has reduced the amount of damage possible from mountain storms, but ranchers and arroyo residents were warned today to be on their guard.

PASADENA HARD HIT BY STORM

PASADENA, Dec. 19—The storm total here at noon was 3 inches. Rain fell steadily all day yesterday, practically all night and is heavier today than at any time since it started. Switzer's camp, in Arroyo Seco, telephoned that the water in the Arroyo stream is higher than it has been at any time in five years. It had risen three feet and is now receding. Over 600 telephones are out of commission, a few automobiles have reported slight skidding accidents, but no serious damage has resulted. The water behind Devil's Gate dam has gone up to the 36.5 foot mark. The total fall on Mount Wilson at noon today reached 10 inches.

BIG STILL WAS DESTROYED BY LOCAL POLICE

Chief Martin With Officers Raid Home Near Glendale

JOS. POWELL IS HELD

Greeted Officers With Bull Dog But Showed No Fight

Chief of Police Martin, Detective Sergeant George Herda and Patrolman Leo Stein, assisted by Prohibition Enforcement Officers Robert C. Avery and Earl Miller, Saturday afternoon raided and destroyed one of the largest whisky stills ever found in Southern California. The still with a capacity of 100 gallons daily was operated by Joseph W. Powell and his wife at their home near La Crescenta lodge, near La Crescenta.

The raid was made as a result of information against Powell and his wife secured by the Glendale police department. When the officers approached the house Powell, was in the attic, where the still was in operation. He came downstairs and out in the yard, accompanied by a bulldog. He was warned by the federal officers to tie the dog and not to resist, as they intended searching his home. The federal agents entered the house from the front yard while the Glendale officers, under the leadership of Chief Martin, searched the barn and outbuildings. Later the Glendale officers joined the federal agents and the search of the house was started.

When the officers reached the attic the odor of whisky in the process of distillation was apparent and opening a door they found the huge still in operation. Powell said to the officers: "Well, men, you have the evidence. I suppose you want to destroy it now." The work of destruction started immediately.

A negro was hired to assist the officers in destroying all but sufficient evidence to be used against Powell and his wife at their trial. The fire was extinguished under the still and the still allowed to cool to enable the officers to load it on a truck.

While the still was cooling, 12 oak barrels with a capacity of 52 gallons each and filled with mash waiting to be put through the still, was destroyed. Mash, whisky completely distilled and waiting to be bottled, whisky in the second distillation process and brandy were poured from the second story window of the house and the containers destroyed.

The still was so large that a three-ton truck was required to haul it to Los Angeles. Powell was taken into custody at once and was locked in the county jail to await his hearing. His wife was allowed her freedom but will in all probability be taken into custody before the date of her husband's trial.

A complete list of apparatus and accessories used by Powell in his wholesale liquor-making included 200 gallons of corn mash, twelve 52-gallon barrels of mash, one 100-gallon still, one five-gallon bottle of brandy, seven five-gallon empty bottles, one gallon demijohn, two one-gallon jugs, one gallon bottle, two 20-gallon casks, two 15-gallon casks filled with liquor, one hydrometer, six packages of hops, one bag of brown sugar, one-half sack of granulated sugar, two packages of filtering talcum, one bottle of coloring matter and 27 gallons of second-run corn whisky.

DEMOCRATS TO TAKE UP STUMP

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Some Democratic senators will organize opposition to the four-power Pacific treaty at an informal conference to be held this week. The Democrats, taking the stand that the treaty is purely a military alliance which applies the principle of the balance of power to the Pacific, will begin a stumping campaign during the Christmas recess of congress.

ARIZONA CASE IS SETTLED BY COURT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The supreme court today dealt another blow at picketing by labor unions during strikes. It granted an injunction restraining members of the waiters' and cooks' union at Bisbee, Ariz., from picketing the restaurant of William Trux. In its decision the court held invalid paragrph 1464 of the Arizona state statute covering injunctions in labor disputes.

SLAYER GIVES UP

STOCKTON, Dec. 19.—Walking into police headquarters and placing a .45 calibre revolver on the desk early today, Pablo Sapien told officers he had murdered his wife. Santa Claus Needs Help In This Valley This Week

BY JOHN H. GERRIE
Prosperity Editor Glendale Daily Press

This is Santa Claus' week. The dear old gentleman is as busy in Glendale as everywhere else. Here he has the sunshine and mild climate to help him. But he wants your help, too.

He is filling up his Christmas boxes in this city for the poor. There should be no poor in such a rich and beautiful country. But there are some and by contrast with their neighbors they seem the poorer.

John H. Gerrie

Santa Claus plans to carry Christmas cheer into every home in San Fernando valley and Antelope valley beyond. There must be no home not stocked with Christmas food, no mother lacking Christmas comforts, no child unprovided with Christmas toys. Yuletide happiness must prevail.

That is the edict of the kind old gentleman of the white hair and beard, who has traded in his reindeers and sleigh for a 1921 model airplane, that he may more thoroughly cover his field. And he wants everybody in Glendale to help. That means you.

For this district he has established headquarters in the Elks clubhouse on Colorado street. In a large basement room devoted to that purpose he already has piled up a stock of food, clothing and toys to a value of $3000. There are wraps and capes and sweaters and caps and other articles of warmth and comfort. There are vegetables and flour and canned goods and nuts and confectionery and other good things to eat and drink. There are dolls and express wagons and miniature airplanes and mechanical toys and a whole menagerie of stuffed animals for little folks to play with. And, yes, it must not be overlooked, there is at least one pair of wooden shoes.

For Santa Claus of this valley, whose initials are B. P. O. E., tries to give everybody on his list exactly

NEW WARFARE IS THREATENED NOW

Opposition to Irish Treaty Cause of Bitter Debate

DUBLIN, Dec. 19. — Renewed warfare on England was threatened in the Dail Eireann today during debate on ratification of the peace treaty.

"I hope to continue to fight, even if this rotten document is accepted," cried Austin Stack, member of the Irish cabinet. "I would have Irishmen remain slaves until the end of time rather than consent to such a document," said President de Valera.

Count Plunkett moved rejection of the treaty.

"It is unsatisfactory," he said. "It means that we must be false to our oath to the empire and our oath to Ireland. As men of honor we must respect our oath to the republic and under no circumstances will I sacrifice my personal honor in this respect."

MEN GET DUCKING

SAN PEDRO, Dec. 19.—Fifty officers and enlisted men from the U. S. S. Oklahoma had to abandon their boat in the channel last night and swim ashore in the icy waters when a motor sailor from the battleship piled upon the rocks and sank in a few minutes.

PREMIER BRIAND SAYS 'BACK DOWN'

French Navy Demand Is Revoked by Premier by Cable

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—An agreement has been reached by the five naval powers of the world to limit their battleship armament. Premier Briand has sent orders to the French delegation at the arms conference to back down from the demand for a navy greater than Japan's and to accept the decision of the other powers that the French ratio in the 5-5-3 plan be approximately 1.75, it was learned today from a high American authority.

MODESTO MARINE HAS DESERTED

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 19.—Ashton Fields of Modesto, Calif., private in the marine contingent, stationed here to guard the mails, has been listed as a deserter, the local marine recruiting office announced today. Fields disappeared Sunday morning. The theory of suicide was advanced when his coat and hat were found on the river front. The marine office is inclined to the belief that the man deserted, fearing exposure in connection with a local robbery.

FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS IN BIG TAG SALE

Business Women Make Great Success of Fund Drive

VERY WELL MANAGED

Float Fund Increased by Big Amount Due to Ladies

1ST PAGE—FIVE HUNDRED ... Tag day is a thing of the past, but it will not soon be forgotten because the returns total $510, for the Glendale float. Members of the Business and Professional Women's Club who conducted the sale are happy over the result, which far exceeded the expectations of the chamber of commerce officials. But for the rainy Saturday night, when it was not possible for workers to conduct the campaign at the theatres as planned, the returns would have been even larger.

The captains at Brand and Broadway were Mrs. Fred B. Walton and Miss Gibbs.

At Brand and Wilson were Mrs. H. V. Brown and Mrs. Mabel Judd.

Brand and California, Dr. H. L. Hukill and Mrs. Wyman.

Brand and Howard, Miss Blanch Warner.

Brand and Colorado, Dr. C. P. Jackman.

Broadway and Central, Mrs. Brosseau.

Broadway and Louise, Drs. Hurt and Haverman.

Broadway and Glendale avenue, Mrs. Jack Thomas.

Brand and Park, Mrs. A. H. Brown.

Brand and Los Feliz, Miss Jane Howe of the Elsa-Jane Realty Co.

Doran and Columbus, Miss Grace Osborne and Mrs. William Heal.

Los Feliz and San Fernando, Mrs. M. P. Moberly.

Central and Stocker, Mrs. Cora Ayres.

Glendale theatre in the evening, Miss Sara Pollard and Miss Ethel Preston.

But these captains would not have been able to achieve any such splendid result but for the devoted service of boys and girls of the high and grade schools.

The list of workers belonging to the high school girls' league included Jessie McGinnis, Charlotte Winsel, Catherine Guthrie, Marguerite Eckles, Adele Miles, Vivian Thomas, Alice Carpenter, Jane Fritsch, Marie Hearnshaw, Flora May McGhee, Vivian Anderson, Evelyn Thomas, Elizabeth Higgins, Dorothy Houston, Helen Rosenburgh, Regina Strosser, Winifred Parker, Lucy Strother, Lucile Allen, Ruth Dana, Gladys Peckham, Shirley Chase, Kathleen Thomas, Alice Swenson, Mabel Garcer, Louise Dair, Louise Hollenbeck, Margery Yarick, Evelyn Gregg, Rose Nelson, Corinne Heacock, Bessie Hodge, Isabel Franklin, Clarice Ayala, Mary Phillips, Virginia Huntley, Oriell Hester, Dorothy Carmack, Dorothy Watson, Selmia Carver, Clara Trimmer, Dorothy Young, Eloise Truitt, Virginia Brecht, Mary Louise Finney and Hazel Neuberg.

Boys and girls from Cerritos avenue school who helped were Beulah Lewis, Charles Boring, Charlotte Tobias, William Chamberlin, Juanita Goldflam, George Karcher, Arthur Biggs, Virginia Jennings, Betty Jennings and Annie Berman.

Helpers from Columbus avenue school were Donald Morrow, Geo. Gray, Bettie Baker, June Ray, Avis Young and Ruth Brendt.

There were other workers not listed with these—Miss Ferriss, Clara Bowling, Florence Hamilton, Rebecca Hodge, Grace Yarbrough, Madeline Quackenbush, Bettie Daniels and others whose names were not secured.

It was a famous victory and the interest in the Glendale float will be greater than ever because our citizens have so largely participated in the effort to make it possible to represent the city at the great rose tournament at Pasadena.

PETTY THIEVES BUSY ON SUNDAY

Petty thieves were busy in Glendale over the week end. Two reports of their depredations were made to the police. F. A. Young, 528 West Doran, reported that his garage had been broken into, a tool chest opened and a quantity of tools taken. This happened early Saturday morning and was reported to the police Saturday afternoon. Theodore Putsman of Thornycroft sanitarium reported that his bicycle was taken Saturday evening. The wheel was parked across the street from fire house No. 1.

Especially does it wish to thank its young friends from the schools who served so faithfully from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m., also the business houses who accorded space for stations.

FRANCE'S PLAN PUT DAMPER ON ALL NAVY HOLIDAY

World Craves Silence in Shipyards, Hammers Laid Aside Forever

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN
(Copyright, 1921, by United Press)

The new naval program upon which the United States, Great Britain and Japan are agreed is not as bad as advance notices made it, if we estimate it by the battleship tonnage destroyed and retained.

The change in the totals is no greater than might be expected, considering the magnitude of the subject and the number of interests involved.

The real disappointment, and it will be real, is the interference with the naval holiday. While any reduction is a step in advance and while the reduction provided for is very large, it will be a cause of profound regret if battleship building continues, even to a limited degree, in the various navy yards.

Silence is what the world craves. But it now looks as if there would be enough of hammering to upset the nerves of the most advanced advocates of peace, and what is more irritating than the hammering will be the rejoicing of professionals who regard the present peace movement as a passing storm to which the governments are merely bending for the time being.

Would it not be possible for the conference to infuse [illegible] situation a little of the [illegible] by the first session? Would it be possible to have the [illegible] of at least one battleship [illegible] United States, Great [illegible] Japan commenced by ag[illegible] Christmas, New Year's [illegible] early date? They even would [illegible] a crowd and the shouts would reverberate around the world.

France's request for a navy equal to Japan's is not likely to be greeted with applause. She might ask that she be excused from scrapping any ships, but when she proposes to build ten thirty-five thousand ton superdreadnaughts in the next ten years she sounds a discordant note. Such a plan would not only give her a larger navy than Japan but would give her an advantage in type of craft over all the other nations.

But France's plan brings Italy into the arena with a similar plan and that would give France and Italy together a navy superior to any other navy in the world. The conference would to a large extent nullify its work if it permitted construction of an enormous fleet of big ships to offset the scrapping of the little ones.

Mr. Balfour is still insisting upon the abolition of submarines. While the defensive submarine may be of some value to the smaller nations, the sentiment of the world will be in favor of abolishing anything that adds to the horrors of war.

HAYS WILL BE HEAD MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRIES

Postmaster Gen. Is Said to Have Accepted Such Post

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Postmaster General Will H. Hays has decided to accept the offer to become virtual head of the motion picture industry in the United States, according to a prominent republican politician here today. He stated that Hays had agreed to accept the leadership of the reorganized Association of Motion Picture Industry at $100,000 a year for two and a half years.

Statements that Hays had accepted were partly confirmed in motion picture circles here but Hays' office maintained a strict silence regarding them. Hays is now said to be "resting up" at some health resort.

MANY STATES RESPOND CALL FOR STOCKINGS

Missouri Brings in Big Stocking Filled With Gifts

CHILDREN RESPOND

Poor Children of Glendale Will Be Made Happy

Come on New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland — come on about eighteen or twenty more states and get in on the Glendale Daily Press Christmas stocking campaign for the poor children of the city.

Saturday afternoon Missouri came across fine with a "walloper" of a stocking, filled to the top and the extra stocking tagged on the side. Missouri's stocking must have at least a dozen presents tucked away inside.

Just after Missouri's stocking came in, little Doris and Milton Holt came in with two pairs of stockings well filled for some poor kiddies in Glendale who are not as lucky as they are. They brought their grandmother, Mrs. G. W. Warner with them, perhaps taking her up town to give her an opportunity to see "what's doing" in the stores. However, Doris, with her beautiful auburn locks and her little brother Milton represent California in the stocking campaign and they are assured a happy Christmas.

Up to noon today, there were 26 pairs of stockings in response to the call of the Glendale Daily Press. There are many states yet not represented in the drive, and it is hoped there will be a full representation of states by Wednesday evening.

There are many needy children in Glendale who will not have a very joyful Christmas. Many stockings have been brought in with the request that the giver's name be omitted and for that reason, many of the stockings are not acknowledged except in a general way.

The office of the Glendale Daily Press will be open until 8 p. m. daily, this week, so that people may bring in stockings after business hours.

STORM HERE HAS DONE WONDERS

Rainfall Sunday Was .9 of An Inch With More Added Today

Save your money, boys, to buy raincoats, for it looks like a wet winter! This seems to be good advice today after considering the amount of rain in the past 24 hours. The poet who wrote the couplet: "It is not raining rain to me: it is raining violets," would find himself swamped in a veritable storm of the shrinking thing today. In fact, if rain was violets the gutters are full of blossoms and vent pipes are fairly oozing fragrance which is merely another way of saying that during the past 24 hours Glendale has had some shower.

The official weather guesser says that rain is promised for all sections of California today and tomorrow. The storm in Glendale yesterday amounted to .95 of an inch, making the total for the season 1.94 inches.

This makes the rainfall record for the year almost reach the total for the entire season last year 2.81. In Los Angeles the rain yesterday measured .51 of an inch bringing the season's total up to 1.77 of an inch.

Farmers throughout the Southland welcomed the downpour yesterday and today with no little enthusiasm. Orange growers in particular hailed the rain as a great benefit to the groves. Nowhere in Southern California has the slightest damage been reported as due to the storm.

SHERIFF'S SON IS SLAIN BY STRIKER

Sheriff Then Shoots Slayer of His Son Early Today

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Dec. 1.—Lewis Jones, son of Sheriff W. H. Jones, of Woodbury county, and a striker named Hazzen Kaled, were both killed in a battle in the packing strike zone about 5 a. m. today.

Kaled, accosted by the sheriff and his son as they started through the district, slugged young Jones over the head and started to run. Young Jones pursued him, ordering him to halt, and had almost overtaken him when Kaled turned and shot him once through the abdomen. Sheriff Jones then shot Kaled, who died en route to the hospital. Young Jones died at the hospital.

Strikers have been causing serious trouble in the strike zone since last night, stoning autos and street cars and beating up pedestrians. State troops are expected to be called. Officials of striking packing house employes claim that Kaled was a strikebreaker, not a union member. His identity is in doubt.

ARDMORE, Okla., Dec. 19.—Ten men, alleged members of a masked band which last Thursday night attacked the home of Joe Carroll, alleged bootlegger, near Wilson, precipitating a battle during which Carroll and two members of the attacking party were killed, today were held in jail here awaiting arraignment on murder charges.

Those under arrest are Lon Julius, Baptist minister of Healdton; John Smith, butcher of Healdton; Jess Smith and Curley Smith, both of Wilson; J. G. Gilliam, stockman, of Ardmore; Dr. E. C. Harlow, optician, Ardmore; Frank Cardwell, insurance agent, Ardmore; W. T. Hilton, retired ranchman, Ardmore; John Murray and Bill Ratliff, oil field workers, Wilson. The last five were taken into custody Sunday. Other arrests may follow, authorities indicated.

TROOP TWO SPENT NIGHT AT CAMP

Boy Scouts Work on Cabin During Week-end Sojourn

Whip-poor-will Patron of Glendale Troop No. 2, Boy Scouts of America, spent Saturday afternoon and night at the troop's club house in Verdugo Woodlands. Wilford Jackson was the patrol leader. Benjamin Robinson, Jr., scout master, was also a guest.

The afternoon was spent in work on the cabin, a portion of the evening being devoted to work on the interior. For the most part, however, the evening was spent around the fire place where a rousing fire made the boys forget the storm outside. Stories were told and songs were sung.

The troop is rejoicing over the beautiful gift of a large oak table for their cabin from Dr. Walter B. Scaife, a noted surgeon of Los Angeles, who has taken a great interest in the boys and has frequently entertained them with stories of his experiences in far places. He is a world traveller and spent 17 years in Italy. He is not exempt from the ills to which flesh is heir in spite of his own professional knowledge and skill and will soon go to Loma Linda as a patient.

The troop is planning a Christmas party for members only at the club house Thursday evening.

It will probably be the recipient of other gifts in the way of furnishings. Its most urgent need now is a small cook stove in which wood can be burned. It is also sighing for a phonograph. Benjamin Robison, Jr., is an expert in repairing such instruments so a second-hand one, if considerably out of repair, will be welcome.

ARABIAN NIGHT AT T. D. & L. THEATER

"One Arabian Night," starring Pola Negri, which opened at the T. D. and L. theater yesterday, is proving a sensational success, Manager Ralph Allan reports. Difficulty is being experienced in handling the crowds which are besieging the theater to see the famous star of "Passion" and "Gypsy Blood," and indications are that all attendance records will be broken.

"One Arabian Night" is a romance of the harem, and the mysticism, love and revenge of the East have been skillfully blended into a picture which is fascinating entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. McGhee and daughters, of 914 Randolph avenue, were the dinner guests Wednesday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lang, 410 West Garfield avenue.

Diet and Migraine

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Hope for sufferers from migraine, or nervous sick headache, is held out with certain observations recently reported in the Journal of the American Medical association. These observations, made by a Baltimore physician, Dr. Thomas R. Brown, indicate that migraine—in some cases, at any rate—is more closely connected with the character of the sufferer's diet than is commonly supposed.

Most medical men, as a matter of fact, regard migraine as a disease of the nervous system of unknown cause other than an inherited tendency to periodic and most painful headaches. Its treatment, they believe, must be largely palliative, directed to diminishing the severity of the attacks.

They have, it is true, emphasized the importance of a hygienic life as contributing to the mitigation of migraine. To this end they advise in a general way against dietary indiscretions. But they have not made it a point to inquire whether even the moderate eating of certain foods may play a decisive part in provoking migraine attacks.

Dr. Brown contends that such is actually the case. Migraine, as he sees it, is often symptomatic of inability to tolerate foods ordinarily found wholesome and nourishing.

"For instance," he says, "I have one patient, a terrible sufferer from true migraine for many years, whose starch intake we have never been able to increase beyond two slices of bread and one potato daily.

"Kept on what amounts to an anti-diabetic diet, this patient has been well, practically headache-free for ten years with, as far as one can tell, absolutely normal health."

In Dr. Brown's experience much migraine of dietary origin is similarly due to intolerance for the usual proportion of starch and sugar in the food. In many other cases he has found intolerance for proteins rather than for carbohydrates.

"In certain cases of migraine," he writes, "patients have obtained great relief from a vegetarian diet. In other cases certain special proteins seem to be particularly implicated, eggs or milk or a combination of the two, in one of my cases."

This last statement, of course, would naturally lead one to urge the sort in all migraine cases to the skin tests now much in vogue to determine sensitivity to special proteins. But Dr. Brown warns:

"Although the reaction to one special food is in these cases of migraine suggestive of the attack being a form of anaphylaxis, in my experience the skin reactions have generally been absolutely negative.

"My feeling hsa always been that such skin reactions as a test of protein sensitiveness are, as a rule, relatively of little value, except in that group of cases associated with definite skin lesions, such as eczema, urticaria, or erythema."

What, then, is a migraine sufferer to do, if he would determine whether food intolerance has any share in causing his migraine?

He can at least experiment, under his physician's direction, in going without this or that food the eating of which seems to increase the frequency and severity of the migraine attacks. And, in fact, Dr. Brown reports that in some cases under his observation self-experimenting of this sort cleared the way for an abating, if not a cure, of migraine.

State News in Brief

DELAWARE

DOVER.—Charter was filed at the state department for the Great Southern Steel Company, capitalized at $105,000,000. The concern is authorized to manufacture iron, steel, copper, coke, etc., and to acquire lands containing the same. A state tax of $5,350 was paid.

GEORGIA

ATLANTA. — Lindsey Hopkins, Well-known Atlanta financier, has been elected a director of the Sixth district Federal Reserve bank, by the federal reserve board meeting in Washington. Mr. Hopkins was in New York when his election took place. The term of the directorship begins January 1, 1922 and lasts three years.

Mr. Hopkins has been in Atlanta the past 12 years, and is prominently identified with banking and financial interests, both here and in New York and North Carolina. He is a director of the American Hides and Leather company of New York, and a member of its executive committee. He is chairman of the board of directors of the Santa Cecilia Sugar Corporation, New York; a director of the Dixie Fire Insurance company, of North Carolina; a director of the International Vegetable Oil company, and a member of the directorate of the Goldsmith-Grant company, of Atlanta.

KANSAS

PITTSBURG. — Garth Delmain, 21, and Elizabeth Keller, 16, were arrested as they walked into this city, on orders from the Chicago police. The Chicago authorities said that Delmain is wanted for bigamy, another wife being in Chicago. Miss Keller, or the second Mrs. Delmain, wore a riding suit. They said they had walked all the way from Chicago.

WICHITA. — Employes of the Santa Fe are to receive a Christmas present in the form of another cut in wages of approximately 10 per cent, effective December 23, according to notices posted at the railway's offices here and at different points along the road.

Conferences to consider the proposed reduction have been called by the railroad officials for Topeka, to continue until December 30.

GREAT BEND.—The Farmers and Merchants State bank, at Pawnee Rock, Kan., was closed pending an audit of the individual accounts of the bank. W. N. Silups, cashier of the bank, was arrested several days ago and charged with embezzlement.

MASSACHUSETTS

BOSTON.—President Kenneth C. M. Sills, of Bowdin College, in speaking at the convention of New England school superintendents, cited the People's School, conducted by St. Francis Xavire College at Antigonish, N. C., as an example of loyalty to education. This school is conducted for farmers, fishermen and carpenters of that region.

BOSTON.—Simon Swig, vice-president of the closed Tremont Trust Company, filed two initiative petitions, for changes in the savings banks laws, at the office of Secretary of State Cook. The first provides for monthly payment of interest by savings banks, and the second says that officers of savings banks shall be elected by the depositors.

Each petition requires 15,000 signatures, from four different counties of the state, and although a total of but 50,000 was required, Mr. Swig claimed that he and his agents secured the signatures of 116,234 certified voters. If the measures are not passed by the legislature in their present form, Mr. Swig plans to file an additional 5,000 signatures in each instance, by July 15, which under the initiative and referendum, will place the questions before the voters at the next state election.

Mr. Swig has a third petition which proposed legislation to permit the removal of a bank commissioner, but this will not be filed by him. He said that he intended to file a bill in the legislature, under the usual form of petition, calling for the removal of Joseph C. Allen as bank commissioner—rather than seek general legislation.

NEW JERSEY

ATLANTIC CITY.—Hot lunches to transported pupils, co-operation between parents, pupils and the public and teachers, music, nursing, education in foods, and nutrition and baking and sewing contests were among the subjects discussed at the closing session of the county and school superintendents and supervising principals of the seven counties in the southern part of the state.

OHIO

CLEVELAND.—Suit for $400,000 damages against four national tobacco manufacturers, 13 Cleveland jobbers and one Akron dealer was filed in the common pleas court by th Weideman-Fries Company, of this city. Among the defendants are the American Tobacco Co., Lorillard & Co., Liggett & Myers Company, and the John J. Bagley Company.

The petition alleges that at the instance of the manufacturers, local jobbers formed an association to keep up the price of tobacco and refused to distribute their goods to the Weideman-Fries Company because they sold to retailers lower than these charged by other jobbers. This, the plaintiff says, is forcing it out of business.

OKLAHOMA

MCALASTER. — Ballots were claiming Pittsburg county by a majority of four hundred in favor of $750,000 bonds intended to match a like amount of federal aid money for improvement of the Jefferson highway. Forty-one out of the seventy precincts heard from in the county show 3600 to 90 in favor of the bond issue.

OKLAHOMA CITY. — Wendell W. Barnes, 23 years old, an employee of the federal reserve branch bank, was arrested here on a federal warrant charging embezzlement of $2,015.72. Barnes, who has an invalid wife and two small children, formerly was employed in the federal reserve bank at Kansas City, and came here when the branch bank was first established. Barnes has made a detailed confession of the alleged embezzlement, bank officials said.

PENNSYLVANIA

HARRISBURG.—The committee of ten named to assist the State Industrial Board in the drafting of a comprehensive building code for Pennsylvania was given the preliminary data and some drafts of sections by Commissioner of Labor and Industry C. B. Connelley.

The proposed code will consist of three sections, the first relates to assembly halls, for which 115 rules have been drafted which will be disposed of first. The second will relate to residential structures and the third to business and industrial.

PHILADELPHIA. —Considerable trouble has been experienced by Director Caven and Chief Dunlap of the bureau of street cleaning, in securing horses for cleaning the streets and collecting ashes, rubbish and garbage of the entire city when the municipality begins to work in January. The department about a year ago purchased 300. About 1600 horses will be required.

The number now on hand is about 600. Many of them came from Kentucky, Virginia and other parts of the country, and were secured at prices ranging from $133 to $140 each. They have been used two and three days a week, in hauling ashes and other refuse and are now acclimated and ready to be put in service at the end of the month.

TENNESSEE

NASHVILLE. — Frank Dietzel, of Union City, serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary, charged with one of the most notable murders occurring in Tennessee in the last ten years, was pardoned by Governor Taylor. A man named Semones, it is stated, having recently confessed the crime in Tampa, Fla.

On the night of July 11, 1914, George Wehman, at Union City, disappeared, and two weeks later his body was found at the bottom of an 18-inch well, completely immersed except the feet. He had been murdered. Wehman and young Dietzel, son of one of the most prominent business men of Union City, had been much together prior to the crime, and afterwards it was said that Dietzel had been in possession of considerable money. Wehman was supposed to have had several hundred dollars on his person at the time. Dietzel was arrested, charged with the murder and subsequently sent to prison for life.

When the news of Semones' alleged confession reached the prisoner's friends, they set to work, obtaining corroboration of it, it is said, and getting up a petition for pardon carrying 1,500 names of officials and citizens of Obion county, including the trial judges and jury. It is stated that Semones, after his confession at Tampa, suddenly disappeared from there.

The Barton Bedtime Stories

A RECUE PARTY ARRIVES

By JOHN BARTON
(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

Tommy Peele and Louie Thomson raced each other all the way down to Dr. Muskrat's Pond without stopping for breath. Some one was shooting in their Woods and Fields! Shooting some of their Woodsfolk friends! How awful! No wonder their legs flew.

But fast as they ran there was time for something else, just as awful, to happen. Dr. Muskrat was gone. He hadn't gone to his house, either. He knew that was the way the man would be shooting. So he hid under the Woods Bridge at the far end of the Pond. But the strange red dog kept on sniff—sniffing up and down the beach, along the bank—"Snff—snff—Aourr!" He had found it! Malty Kitten's old home—the squirrel hospital. He began digging!

In three paw-strokes he had jerked out the soft grass bed where the wounded widow of Chatter had been lying. Sniff? It was still warm. But where was the squirrel?

You know—just as Dr. Muskrat knew. She was dragging herself up the long secret tunnel that led to Nibble Rabbit's nest. It would be a long dig after her, but up at the end—? The doctor wondered if Nibble Rabbit could hear. Could he and Silkears steal away without letting that man see them. They might—the Pickery Things were very thick, even if they hadn't any leaves on them. But the poor window was as good as caught—what was that sound?

Ah, clever, clever Nibble! That dog didn't dig very far before a fine big piece of bank slid down on him like an avalanche. It all buried him. He had to struggle out and shake the dirt of this eyes and ears. He was panting hard. He wanted just a swallow of water to cool his tongue, so he turned toward the Pond.

"Hey, you quitter!" yelled the man. "Come back here! Dig 'em out there! S—s—sic 'em!" He laid down his gun, against the fieldmouse's stump, so he could pick up a stick and shovel away the earth. Both of them were hard at it when they heard a shout.

"Wha—what do you mean by hunting in my Woods and Fields?" demanded the indignant Tommy.

"Who said I was hunting?" answered the man. "Hey, quit that scratching!" he ordered his dog. It didn't hear him, so he walked up and gave it a cruel kick. Kicked it for doing just what he told it to do. Because it proved he was lying when he said, "I wasn't hunting. I was just walking through."

He shouldn't have behaved like that with Louie Thomson and Tommy Peele. Not when Watch was with them!

LARGE CARGO TO ARRIVE IN FRISCO

Eight Freight Cars Loaded With Autos Are Due in Bay City Today

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—One of the longest freight trains loaded entirely with automobiles to reach the west in recent months is on its way to the Pacific coast from Toledo, Ohio, and is expected to reach San Francisco today. The train has 80 freight cars carrying 400 Willys-Knight and Overland automobiles for Northern California, and the shipment is valued at approximately a half million dollars. The cars were ordered by the Willys-Overland Pacific Company. This is the second long train-load of Overlands and Willys-Knight cars to reach California over Southern Pacific lines in the last 30 days, an 86 car train having been received at Los Angeles on November 15.

This second large train-load of automobiles was necessitated by a complete sell-out of all closed models of both Lillys-Knight and Overland on the entire Pacific coast. This last train load is composed of about 80 per cent closed models, the balance being made up of Willys-Knight roadsters, which has proven a very popular model.

George E. Smith, the Glendale distributor, is awaiting on account of this shipment several closed cars and one roadster for distribution before Christmas.

Motor Party—George Bentley of 400 South Adams street, accompanied by Ray Bentley, John Bentley, S. A. Bagg, C. E. Maxwell, S. W. Fenton and A. H. Aiken, motored to Starvation Valley on the Ridge route Saturdal morning to hunt quail, returning Saturday night. They brought back a few quail and jack rabbits, but luck was not running very strong.

SCHOOL BENEFIT AT T. D. & L. THEATER

Tomorrow, the annual benefit for the Intermediate School Association will be held at the T. D. and L. theater, and everyone who loves children will no doubt eagerly hope for its unprecedented success. Reports of the number of tickets being sold by the school children whose benefit campaign is in the hands of Richardson D. White and Miss Clara Midcalf, principals of the school, indicate a very promising result. At the theater Ralph Allan, manager, has arranged for the personal appearances of two well-known film folk, of interest to the grown-ups as well as the children. Zeda, the giant Zulu of "The Miracles of the Jungle" fame in native costume, and Coy Watson, Jr., the boy actor, featured in the comedy, "Nick of Time Hero," which will also be shown. They will appear at both afternoon and evening performances. As a prevention to long waiting in line Mr. Allan suggests that those who will attend prepare to come early, and bring the children.

UNITED STATES NOW AT PEACE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The United States is now at peace with all the world. The third and last peace treaty was concluded today between the United States and Hungary, according to word from Hugh Grant Smith, American charge at Budapest. Ratifications have been exchanged, he cabled. Similar treaties have already been made with Germany and Austria.

Santa Claus Needs Help

what is wanted and he has received many letters asking for special articles. One of these letters, from a very old lady living on the side of a mountain, requested Santa to bring her a stalk of celery and a pair of wooden shoes. And the dear old lady will have her wish gratified.

The B. P. O. E. distribution for Santa Claus will reach upwards of one hundred families, all the orphanages and institutions for the needy and unfortunate in the district and some three hundred children. The presents to the families will go out in large celery crates, each of which will contain all the essentials of a Christmas dinner, including a chicken, besides wearing apparel and toys. The distribution will include Glendale, Eagle Rock, Burbank, Sunland, Tujunga, La Crescenta, Lancaster, Palmdale, Saugus, Newhall, Sespe, Simi and other valley settlements. The farthest delivery will be ninety miles.

Santa Claus is a business-like old party. His distribution will not be on a hit-and-miss plan. The B. P. O. E. has a card-index system for its gifts. It knows pretty nearly what every family needs, and every child wants. And it is going to supply those needs and wants just as closely as it can.

But to cover so large a district costs quite a lot of money. And it is unfair to expect the B. P. O. E. to stand all the expense, besides doing all the work, under the supervision of Santa Claus.

To give some assistance to the generous Elks the Glendale Daily Press has arranged to publish on Thursday of this week a Special Elks Christmas edition, devoted largely to the work of this benevolent order in this district. And 25 per cent of the receipts from advertising in this special edition, exclusive, of course, of regular contract advertisements, will be turned over to the B. P. O. E. local lodge to help defray the cost of the Christmas distribution.

There's where you may help Santa Claus. If you have anything to advertise put it in the Santa Claus edition of the Daily Press on Thursday next. There will be no increase in rates and you will get the benefit of increased circulation besides helping the Christmas cause.

The bulk of the Christmas distribution will be done Saturday, Christmas eve. Delivery will be voluntary and many automobiles will be required. Santa Claus will need about a hundred lieutenants with cars on that day. Notify the B. P. O. E. clubhouse on Colorado street as soon as possible if you can help. Get on the list for general orders from Santa Claus.

BENIGHTED

By JOHN BRECK

"Benighted!" 'Tis a fine old word. It really means to be enfolded by the limitless dark between dusk and dawn instead of four walls and a roof. It is an adventure a pioneer might come by honestly enough, but for the most part it befalls outlaws, soldiers of fortune, raiders who prowl with no better intentions than their brother beasts. To the knowing ear it smacks of romance far removed from the missionary rant which has made it synonymous with "ignorant." It is more akin to being "bewitched."

The whereabouts of the road were a matter of complete indifference while you watched the hill tops glow like coals in the sunset flame and the valleys flood with dew-mist. But you know awe as the sudden darkness swallows you. The one sparkle of light which marks a house is very, very far. What tangles of impenetrable brush, what rocky chasms lie between you and it, you can guess only too well. How dare you travel them when you can scarcely see the stick which turns suggestively beneath your foot?

"Might as well wait and see how much light is left in the old moon," you philosophize. A fire, in this riotous growth, is out of the question; because the wind blows shrewdly where you stand, you lair cautiously actually holds the warmth about you?

The sharp grasshopper-voiced protest of a ground squirrel brings clammy moisture to your forehead—it is so suggestive of a more sinister sound, the leper-cry of the rattler that he is "unclean, unclean!" For a time you crouch, tense with the cold, alert for every mouse-tread.

Insensibly—is it because the folige actually holds the warmth about you—you relax. Sounds cease to startle you. The wee folk, going about their darkling businesses, reassure you that all is well. You lie limp as a dry leaf uncurled by the dew. You feel as if you are dissolving back into the earth from which you sprang——

You never see the waning moon. A persistent rustle opens your eyes on a handsome cock-quail engaged in a spry bit of beak-fencing with another little Knight of the Curly Plume. Languidly, luxuriously, even, you reassemble your lost self. You come forth to worship the rosy sparkling beauty of the dawn world in a lover's mood which few but the "benighted" ever know.

The man who is ashamed to admit that he's a politician will never get much coin out of politics.

JOY IN GIVING IS SERMON SUBJECT

Dr. Funk at First Lutheran Tells of Yuletide Joys

"Joy in Christian Giving" was the subject for the morning sermon by Dr. Funk at the First Lutheran church. Gifts are valuable only as they become expressions of love and appreciation. And as we are thinking of Christian giving we may ask: What gifts has infidelity bestowed that have proved a blessing to mankind? What institutions has she builded for the amelioration of the poor, or to relieve the oppressed? Some time ago a well-known skeptic in Kansas city died. His friends were surprised to learn that he had willed all but $4,000 of his fortune to religious organizations. When he looked about for a safe place to put his wealth for the future benefit of others he found that the Christian institutions were the agencies for the greatest blessing to mankind.

All about us we may observe the beneficient influences of our holy religion. Who would want to bind himself down to live in Glendale for ten years if the Bible and the Christian church were barred from our city? Senator Hoar, in an address at Concord, said: "But none the less do we need an arm on which to lean, a voice to utter our own needs; an interpreter to us and our children of the counsel of God in spiritual things. To enforce the sense of duty, to strengthen the will; to kindle the flame of religious affection; to turn the thoughts to whatever is pure, honest, lovely and of good report; to make Sunday last through the week; to bring consolation to sorrow, to organize charity, to stimulate Christian activity; to summon our youth to holy living and brave dying, to drive clouds of spiritual darkness from the way of men; to bring life as well as immortality to light; these are the functions of the Christian church."

SPECIAL GUARDS WALL ST. TODAY

Precaution Against Threat to Blow Up Whole District

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Special armed guards were on duty today at the New York stock exchange, the sub-treasury and other buildings in the financial district, while Wall street was on tip-toe in expectation of another bomb explosion. According to an anonymous letter of warning received last week by Charles T. Morgan, a broker, the stock exchange and an area extending five blocks around it, was to be dynamited today.

The men under suspicion are Italians and are not connected with the Wall street bomb plotters of September, 1920. Their headquarters are believed to have been at New Rochelle, N. Y. The letter said:

"This is a warning to you that the stock exchange and everything in the radius of five blocks will be blown up by bomb on December 19. Leave town or get out of this vicinity on the 19th." It was written on a small piece of paper and mailed in a plain envelope.

Truths in Epigram

You think that upon the score of fore - knowledge and divining I am infinitely inferior to the swans. When they perceive approaching death they sing more merrily than before, because of the joy they have in going to the God they serve.—Socrates.

None ever loved but at first sight they loved.—Chapman (1557-1634).

RULES WORTH OBSERVING

Autoists as a general thing pay attention to the regulation that forbids passing a standing car, only when a policeman is known to be in sight. Otherwise they are likely to void the rule, and laugh merrily at the protesting pedestrian.

On the rear of the cars is now displayed the necessary set of instructions. The auto must stop ten feet back of a standing car. Then by swerving six feet to the right it acquires the right to go ahead. All this is reasonable. The visible reminder leaves the drive no excuse for ignoring the rights of others.

The driver, of course, does not desire to kill or maim anybody. He is governed by the notion that the persons whom his aggressive carelessness endangers will take care of themselves, hopping out of his way with saving agility.

It happens, unfortunately, that all people are not agile. Some of them have sacrificed the power of quick-stepping to previous contact with swift automobiles. Some are old, some laden with bundles or babies. A few still have faith that drivers are reasonably cautious.

The driver who fails to heed a warning sign held before his eyes deserves the limit the police judge is able to name.

CHINA INSISTING ON RIGHTS

The fact is not to be deplored that China should insist upon her rights. The real humor of the conference seems to be to accord such rights. So far as Japan may still entertain thought of governing China in spots, the other members of the compact, it may be assumed, will be able gently to dissuade her. If the process cause delay, no serious harm is to be apprehended. While the conference is in session, engaged in a good work, is the precise time for finishing the task properly.

As intimated in previous treatment of the subject, the elimination of Japan from China would be greatly to the benefit of the former. The Japanese tread on dangerous ground while they are there.

Ask your Chinese gardener what he thinks about Japan. The chances are that he will say that in a few years there will be no Japan.

This is an indication of the mood that is being instilled into the millions of Chinese. If they should be goaded on to wrath, Japan, even with its military and naval strength kept at the highest possible pitch of efficiency, would be overwhelmed.

The Chinese have not for centuries shown any desire to be aggressive. It begins to be evident that they could be aroused to aggression, and woe to the people so foolish as to arouse them.

NOT THE SAME

"This country said at the last election, and by seven millions, that it wanted nothing to do with the Versailles treaty. Yesterday the United States signed a treaty with Japan, France and England, guaranteeing to protect the situation in the Pacific. Quite a change since election day, 1920."

Such is the statement of an editor who bitterly opposes every governmental policy save that designed to leave this country not only isolated, but presenting to all other countries a front of hostility. He utters himself now as though devoted to American welfare. It is worth bearing in mind that a short term of years ago, his devotion was all for German welfare, the two nations then being at war. This, however, is incidental.

There is implied in the quoted paragraph, that the present pact, which the editor fought by base methods, is in some sort a duplication of the Versailles treaty. This implication is unjust, and lacks basis in fact.

Some Americans feared that the Versailles treaty would have the effect of dragging the United States into war concerning questions not vital to itself.

The effect of the present pact could not be other than to bar out the possibility of war. Such is its avowed purpose, and such, according to all logical consideration, must be the result.

While a war in Europe could not leave this country unconcerned, for it would shake the whole structure of civilization, a war in the Pacific would involve the United States directly. To prevent a war in the West became a pressing duty. It has been recognized and met. The pact is in no sense an endorsement of the treaty of Versailles, although it may contain a principle that, made wider in scope, will in the end cause a treaty similar to the one rejected, to be endorsed by the peoples of both continents.

THE AMAZON ARMY

Reports came from Kansas that an army of Amazons was spreading terror there. Its members had not killed anybody, but had voiced a readiness to do so. It was throwing red pepper into the eye of the unfriendly police power. It intended to sprinkle seasoning on the militia, and serve the soldiers up raw. Such was the tenor of the dreadful tale.

Doubtless it was with an inward shudder the militia marched to the place of doom. They arrived and found not an Amazon, not a whiff of pepper. On the contrary the feminine contingent remained at a distance. Perhaps they made faces, or exchanged sarcasms among themselves, but they were guilty of not the slightest attempt at violence. Some of the younger relented so far as to flirt mildly with the invaders.

The labor situation in Kansas is peculiar. The head of the coal miners there ordered a strike. This was in defiance of the parent organization, and of the mandate of the industrial court. Therefore he is doubly in contempt, but it is for contempt of the court that he is in jail.

More than one coal strike has been ordered without reason, but when the national executives hold that there is no legitimate ground for striking, the absence of reason is accentuated, and the tendency is to regard the truculent mob of idle as mere mischief makers.

When men won't work, and the problem of getting something to eat begins to press, of course the women get interested. If in this instance they could persuade the men to resume the production of coal, they would be much happier. And perhaps they could find a reasonable use for red pepper in the preparation of meals.

REARING THE BOGIE MAN

The public is being informed that the ratification of the Pacific pact would be an end to the Monroe doctrine. In relation to this matter two things may be assumed:

That the statement is made by persons who know it to be untrue, because in relation to other phases of the same pact they have been notoriously untruthful;

That the public is too well aware of the nature of the agreement, and the nature of its traducers, to be in danger of being befooled.

The Monroe doctrine has not been assailed, imperilled, or had connection with the agreement. The attempt is now being made to drag it in. It is being employed in the well-known role of Bogie man.

In the Pacific were certain interests pertaining to more than a single power. There was danger of a clash. Signs of misunderstanding were beginning to appear. The consent of all four powers to an amicable arangement defining the rights of each, agreeing upon a course designed to avoid friction, and yet to adjust such complication as might arise, was the result of the conference. This cannot be deemed otherwise than beneficent. Its effect is heightened by arrival at a conclusion to cut down armaments and to institute a naval holiday.

The responsibility that by the Monroe doctrine is made to rest upon the United States, as to the attitude of other peoples towards the peoples of this continent, has been in no way lessened or changed.

For some reason the agreement of the powers at interest, concerning naval limitation, is regarded with melancholy eye by some observers. Peace is repugnant to comparatively few, however, and the blow thus administered to the prospects of war, is generally welcomed.

Telephone rates will be considerably advanced with the beginning of the year. The advance is fixed at less than the corporation desired, more than the public endorsed, and the railroad commission has to bear the responsibility.

VANDERLIP'S IDEA

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Whether the idea be that of Mr. Frank A. Vanderlip or of others, or of both, at least this financier has recently been in Europe visiting the various countries and proposing an outline for a gold reserve bank for all the countries of Central Europe.

DR. FRANK CRANE

His suggestion seems to be to organize an international banking corporation with a capital of $1,000,000,000 in gold.

This would propably be organized not under the laws of any particular country, but either through the League of Nations or in some other way that raises it above any particular nationality.

The share, or 100 gold dollars each, would be available for any one.

Any European nation so desiring could organize a subsidiary bank corporation to co-operate.

The parent bank would have power to issue circulating dollar notes and to make advances of them against deposits of gold and indorsed commercial paper.

The plan has many other features of importance.

In an interview Mr. Vanderlip said: "This plan would not infringe upon the sovereignty of any nation, it would not tie the hands of any finance minister, it would not stop any government from printing any further currency issues of its own, although I certainly hope that its tendency would be to curb, or rather to make unnecessary, any further paper currency."

This, to say the least, is a suggestion in the right direction. It goes to the root of what is the matter with the world.

The matter with the world, as has frequently been pointed out, is that it is endeavoring to do an international business on national bases. Commerce is universal. Nations are local. Commerce will always be crippled so long as it is tied up to a nation. In other words, commerce and finance are getting too big for their breeches.

We are discovering that finance is not at all a national affair. And neither is prosperity for that matter. It is an international affair.

We not only need Disarmament Conferences and Leagues of Nations and other political efforts towards unity in order to keep us from the calamity of war: we need some sort of commercial and financial co-ordination to keep us from the calamity of bankruptcy.

We have got to get nationalism properly subordinated in our minds. It is not supreme. Mankind is supreme.

The organizing of one nation against others is a worn-out idea. The end of it is to bankrupt everybody.

In some way or other we have got to grasp the idea of the welfare not alone of the laborers in the United States or the state of Kentucky, but of all laborers everywhere.

This is not Idealism. It is a practical thing, that is being driven home to us just at present.

Nothing may come of Mr. Vanderlip's idea, but it is one more indication that people are beginning to think in terms of mankind and of common sense, instead of in terms of war, hostility, competition, and hate.

THE LISTENING POST

Take old Santa Claus, for instance.
Look how jolly and fat-cheeked and round he is.
Shaking with laughter and filled with good nature.
And yet one of the hardest workers we have.

* * *

Look at the territory he covers.
And the chimneys he goes down.
And the Christmas trees he attends.
And the packs he carries.
And the general extent of his business.

* * *

Yet he keeps in the best humor.
Is smiling and kindly and benevolent and ready to laugh at the slightest chance.
And he's not always around looking for something.
He's out giving people something.

* * *

Santa Claus has discovered the real philosophy of happiness.
Giving things away to make for happiness.
And whoever invented him knew something of what is real in life.
For he might have made Santa Claus a different being.

* * *

There are two things you can do through life, as well as at Christmas time.
You can wonder what you'll give to it.
Or you can wonder what you'll get out of it.
And on which course you take depends happiness.

* * *

A lot of people in the world are looking to get things.
And to get them easily.
And for little or nothing.
They have dreams of Monte Cristo.
And Captain Kidd and his treasure.

* * *

Or finding a gold mine.
Or bringing in a gusher.
Or something else of the kind.

* * *

The slow processes of work and achievement by labor do not appeal to them.

* * *

Hard working people with overalls on are boobs to them.
Country folk who raise things to eat are hicks.
Those unfamiliar with the directory of the movie stars are rubes.

* * *

But the work of the world, we have to admit, is done largely by boobs, hicks and rubes.
And many of the seekers of riches in haste and ease will bear watching.
The footpad for instance.
He wants easy money.

* * *

Then there's the burglar and the highway robber.
Both of them looking for get-quick-rich profits.
And there's the grasshopper on the stalk.
The mite in the cheese.
The flea on the dog.

* * *

They are all getters.
None of the give-spirit in any of them.
And they have their counterparts in the human family.
And who wants to be grasshopper, a mite or a flea?

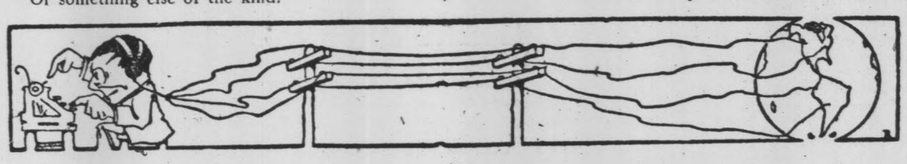
* * *

So far as Santa Claus is concerned, you never saw him around asking for something for nothing.
He's a go-giver.
Not a mite, a grasshopper or a flea.

* * *

And you:
Who are strong, capable, the product of all these years of education and religion and training.
Who know the need of the world.
Who profess humanitarianism and charitableness.
Are you a go-giver?
Or are you merely a go-getter?

JAMES W. FOLEY.



SONGS OF THE POETS

You'll Love Me Yet—By Robert Browning (1812-1889)

You'll love me yet!—and I can tarry
Your love's protracted growing:
June rear'd that bunch of flowers you carry,
From seeds of April's sowing.

I plant a heartful now: some seed
At least is sure to strike,
And yield—what you'll not pluck indeed,
Not love, but, may be, like.

You'll look at least on love's remains,
A grave's one violet:
You look?—that pays a thousand pains.
What's death? You'll love me yet!

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

VOICE OF THE YOUNG MEN

[Philadelphia Public Ledger]

The generation that is at the door demands its word in the matter of the limitation of fleets and armies and the problem of world disarmaments. The lads who met in Princeton on Wednesday are the cannon "fodder" of tomorrow's wars.

These young men have every right to be heard. It is the young man who suffers, fights and does the dying; the young man whose career vanishes in the smoking fronts and who comes back to the slow years of Reconstruction after Destruction has passed. When the conference has finished its work, that work will, for good or evil, affect the young men who are in the schools and colleges, at the desks, the benches and back of the counters today.

The spokesman from forty colleges who met at Princeton look at this matter sanely. They are expecting no "millennial dawns," but they do ask that the present naval building program be suspended for all time and that existing fleets be reduced. They see, what others have discovered, that the Far Eastern problems must be eliminated before disarmament can get forward.

The voice of America's young men spoke at Princeton. This and other nations of the six-power parleys will do well to give heed to demands, warnings and opinions of the next generation. Their word and their day will come after ours, and it is for their future freedom and security that the conference meets. They will fight the next war and pay for it.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

Let's learn not to accept blindly. Why not do our own thinking for ourselves? A lazy mentality hinders progress just as much as a lazy physical attitude toward life hinders personal advancement.

Conditions about us and in our own lives are not bettered often because we assume that they must always go on just as they have. They are, therefore they must always be. That's not sound reasoning, is it, now we think of it?

But it's only the things we think about that are improved. Progress always comes because somebody somewhere has troubled to think out a better method or way. We shall find this true, whether we apply it to housework or the highest reaches of science.

We take poverty for granted, and it is ours. We take poor government for granted, and continue to be the victims. We accept unharmonious family life as a thing which must be, and continue to have our days made torture. Unless we exert ourselves enough to think out better plans for doing, we shall not march in the line of progress, but sit back and watch braver ones succeed where we fail.

There are certain immutable conditions and laws of life and nature that we must accept as cheerfully as possible because they are beyond our power to change. But these are in the great minority in our lives. If we will, we can overcome, we can change, we can progress.

Why blindly accept?

"Humdrum isn't where you live— it's what you are." These words one of our much-read authors puts into the mouth of one of his characters. It's a pretty good thought to take to ourselves. For we're very prone, many of us, to feel that we live in a world of drudgery.

Queer, isn't it, how the world can have so many aspects to so many people? Both a tribute to the myriad-sided human nature of us all, and to the wonderful alchemy of thought and imagination. The trouble with us who are drudges in life is that we are wilfully living on the wrong side of life's mirror.

It's always ugly and blank behind the mirror. Nothing but blank wall and rough backing of frame and glass. One could look all day and never be quickened in imagination. One could easily be pardoned for crying out against the barren outlook—if that were all the way there was to look.

But once we are in front of the glass, how different! We can see all the beauties within reach—all the sparkle and shimmer and movement, the color and sheen and delight. Every bit of light is caught and refracted—the sun's rays are split into charming harmonies of color—violet, yellow, pink.

Best of all, on the right side of the mirror we can see ourselves. "But the sight is disappointing, so plain becomes the failures, so emphasized the imperfections." We're terribly weak mortals if we stop there. Sight is the stepping stone to improvement, realization the opening of the path to better things.

Humdrum isn't where we live. It's what we are.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

There is much said over in Los Angeles concerning the prevalence of crime. The subject is one that interests the whole community. Where there are centers of crime there are lines of radiation from it.

HENRY JAMES

On one hand the chief of police is being severely criticized for raids on poker games and lotteries, while the streets are made perilous by the acts of thugs, and pickpockets are busy in the holiday throngs.

On the other hand noisily reformatory elements blame him bitterly because it is possible to find places in which the rattle of chips may be heard. They declare that the lid on vice has been lifted, or at least that it is tilting, greatly to the impairment and distress of morality.

From this it may be observed that the old idea that a policeman's lot is not a happy one receives fresh demonstration.

Doubtless it is true that crimes are hatched where men foregather to violate the laws touching such matters as dice and schemes of chance. The importance of clearing out these dens is manifest enough. At the same time the fact that a citizen in walking from the streetcar to his house is likely to be banged over the head and robbed, or driving home is in danger of being shot, his automobile confiscated by the assassin, is even more important.

Deplorable as is the revelation that somewhere in a backroom a "sport" is being trimmed out of a dollar or two, or that a rube is betting on the outcome of races never run, or the rise in stocks never listed, all things being relative, the chief is welcome to concentrate his efforts on catching the scoundrels who really constitute a public danger.

Only a short time ago a congressional committee scored Blanton nearly into collapse. Naturally he had to take it out on somebody.

Blanton's statement that Gompers is throttling the government, however, fails to impress.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

It must be all of ten years ago that Mike Shunk first began to try to sell me life insurance. He was just beginning his career in this particular form of crime, and I didn't have enough money for cakes and sausage, let alone protection for a wholly hypothetical family against my improbable decease. Mike didn't have his words and music very pat, either. He'd begin:

"At the age of sixty you will have accumulated benefits——"

Then he would forget what the benefits would be. If I had been able to pay for life insurance then, and the company would have made good on some of Mike's promises, I might be free of the dreary grind today. His mathematical theories were loose and free. But I knew the company wouldn't, and I couldn't, and we didn't. But Mike has kept on coming just the same.

"If you had taken that life insurance when I first offered it to you," he said yesterday, beginning to thumb his book.

Of course. Certainly. If I had bought stock in the right well instead of in the wrong one I would now be riding in a patent leather limousine with a diving beauty on the front end. The driver could sight through her arms at pedestrians. But I didn't do any of those things for one reason and another.

He has never been an eloquent agent. His figures have always been subject to revision. He is not a particularly appealing person, being somewhat bent now and apt to get a little silly at the lodge banquets when same brother sneaks a bottle of his New Discovery past the hip-tester at the door. But Mike has been successful. He has sold more life insurance—a business for which he is peculiarly and emphatically not qualified—to more people than any other agent in town. He may not be indecently rich, but there is a steel trap inside his front door for any wolf that may come fooling around. He did it by his accursed, unending, never-let-up persistence.

It was ten years ago that he began trying to sell me life insurance. He made the sale today.

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

Gas issuing from a seam of coal was collected in a bladder by Sir James Lowther in 1733 and burned before the Royal society a month later. This was probably the first experiment in gas-lighting.

MISS REITERMAN IS BRIDE HARRISON FRANK

The wedding of Harrison Frank, son of Mrs. Harriet Frank, 1558 East Wilson street, and Miss Mabel Reiterman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Reiterman, took place at the home of the bride's parents, 216 North Coronado street, Los Angeles, Saturday evening at 8:30. It was a very quiet but pretty home affair. The Reiterman home had been beautifully decorated with greenery and poinsettias, the ceremony taking place in front of the fireplace, which was banked with flowers.

Rev. W. E. Edmonds of this city was the officiating clergyman and Dr. Reiterman gave his daughter in marriage. The bride was gowned in white taffeta, carried a beautiful shower bouquet of orange blossoms and sweet peas and wore the conventional wedding veil. She was attended by the bridegroom's sister, Miss Alice Frank, who wore a gown of ecru lace over light blue taffeta. Harry A. James of Los Angeles was best man.

L. P. Reiterman, brother of the bride, gave piano numbers preceding the ceremony and played the Lohengrin wedding march.

Following the marriage, refreshments were served and Mr. and Mrs. Harrison left for a short honeymoon trip. On their return they will be at home to their friends in a pretty bungalow on Benton way, which was the wedding gift of the bridegroom's mother. The bride was the recipient of an unusual collection of beautiful gifts from her fellow teachers and members of the Parent-Teacher association of Hollywood High, where she is director of music, filling the position formerly held by Prof. Hugo Kirchofer.

Those present at the wedding, besides the bridal pair were: Dr. and Mrs. Charles Reiterman, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Reiterman and their three sons, who formerly resided in this city; Miss Alice Reiterman, sister of the bride, who is vice principal of Lincoln High; Mrs. Harriet Frank, Miss Alice Frank, Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Edmonds, Mr. and Mrs. Walker, aunt and uncle of the bride.

MISS ANNE COOKMAN SOON TO WED

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Anne Cookman of this city to Earl J. Thomson of Long Beach was made at a tea given by Miss Cookman on Saturday afternoon, December 17, at the attractive new home of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Cookman, 638 North Louise street.

Miss Cookman is a graduate of Manual Arts high school and the Normal school at Los Angeles. Mr. Thomson is at present at Dartmouth college, Hanover, New Hampshire, and is an athlete of world renown, holding the world's record in high hurdles. Mr. Thomson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomson of Long Beach.

The tea was preceded by a musicale. Miss Genevieve Mulligan of Glendale gave a selection on the violin. Piano selections were rendered by Miss Ethel Wilson of Glendale and Miss Marguerite Cashin of Los Angeles. Miss Lorette Smith of Whittier sang and Miss Jane Robertson of Pomona gave two whistling solos.

The house was very attractively decorated with holly, poinsettias and Christmas greens. In the dining room in the center of the tea table was a miniature hurdle made of white centuria blossoms and maiden hair and asparagus ferns. In front of the hurdle stood a bronge statue of a Grecian Marathon runner, which was presented to Mr. Thomson by the King of Belgium at Antwerp, in the summer of 1920, when Mr. Thomson made a new Olympic record in the high hurdles.

The engagement was announced in a very unique and beautiful manner. A small white scroll containing the names of the young couple had been placed in the bronze wreath of the victor upheld in the left hand of the marathon runner. After the musicale, when the guests were invited into the dining room for refreshments, Mrs. Francis Smith of Whittier, an intimate friend of Miss Cookman, opened the scroll containing the announcement of the engagement, while Miss Genevieve Mulligan in the living room, played softly on the violin, "O Promise Me," and Lohengrin's wedding march.

Assisting Miss Cookman were Mrs. Alfred Cookman of San Diego, the Misses Francis Smith and Marion Smith of Whittier, Miss Jane Robertson of Pomona, Miss Marguerite Cashin of Los Angeles and Miss Mildred Bryant of Long Beach.

Other guests were Mrs. W. W. Cookman, Mrs. William Bucher, Mrs. Mulligan, Miss Genevieve Mulligan, Mrs. Guy Pixley, Miss Helen Gould, Miss Irene Gervais, Miss Ethel Wilson, Miss Sarah Hommer, all of Glendale; those from Whittier were Miss Helen Chase, Miss Marion Smith, Miss Nellie Wicker, Miss Emma Wicker, Miss Blanche Burum, Miss Lura Haworth, Miss Edna Wagner, Miss Ethel Sheldon, Miss Lorette Smith, Mrs. Dean Richmond, and Miss Mabel Lawrence. Under this arbor stood a table in the center of which was a beautifully decorated Christmas tree. Gifts were placed in an inverted Japanese umbrella with streamers attached, which hung over the edge and as the children danced around the umbrella each child caught a streamer and drew a gift. The afternoon was spent in playing games and a short vaudeville show was given. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and candies were served by the hostess who was assisted by Mrs. Alex Macdonald, Mrs. Crawford Hanson and Miss Edith Price. At each place were nut shells containing a tiny gift for each guest.

Leaders of Y. M. C. A. groups had a very pleasant session Saturday evening when they were entertained by W. G. Boyd at his home on North Jackson street.

"Thrift Week," January 16 to 22, will also receive attention. The regular educational program will be carried out by having speakers to address the boys and by taking them on educational trips. Also an effort will be made to stimulate greater interest in the work among the parents of the boys.

SIGN PACT OR GET WAR WAS THREAT

Barton Tells Dail Eireann What Lloyd George Said

DUBLIN, Dec. 19. — Premier Lloyd George demanded that the Irish delegates sign the Anglo-Irish peace treaty or face the alternative of immediate war, Robert Barton, one of the delegates, charged during debate on the pact in the Dail Eireann today.

"I broke my oath to the republic as a lesser outrage than the violation of my country," Barton said.

Collins vigorously declared that if he had stood for an Irish republic he could have said so in the beginning and there would have been no peace conference.

"I am no apologist," he said. "Under this treaty we will be in the association of nations. Shall we go on fighting in slavery—fighting a hopeless fight—or shall we stand on our own feet? Rejection of the treaty means a declaration of war until we have beaten the British Empire."

FIGHT CUT DOWN SPUD'S SENTENCE

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—A fight to cut down the 50-year sentences imposed on Edmund (Spud) Murphy and Edward (K. O.) Kruvosky, San Francisco gangsters, by the prison board was started today by Attorney Ernest Spagnoli. Spagnoli will appeal to the supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus and will also ask Governor Stephens for a reduction of the sentence, which he declared was "unusual" and therefore contrary to law.

"The prison board, if anything, is guilty of a worse crime than the gangsters."

This was the caustic statement made today by Attorney William Herron, connected prominently with the gangster trial.

"The sentences placed upon Kruvosky and Murphy," Herron said, "were most unjust—tyrannically so. The decision does not affect my clients. I prepared the brief in the Kruvosky case but other than that had no connection with them. Under the prison board ruling, Murphy and Kruvosky can appeal for parole after 14 years.

Fashions for Americans

For the small boy, a very smart "dress suit" consists of velvet breeches and a soft, white silk shirt or blouse. When velvet suspenders with little metal buckles hold the small trousers over the shoulders, the outfit is particularly pleasing. Eton or Fauntleroy jacket of velvet may be added, for good measure, or the blouse and breeches may make up the suit, correct black pumps and white stockings or socks completing the outfit.

Small boys usually adore suits that have suspenders or shoulder straps of one sort or another, many little play overalls being so equipped. A new and very practical play outfit for the small boy is the knitted overall suit, with attached suspenders. These suits are usually shown in serviceable colors such as brown, navy, dark gray, red, etc., often with a stripe in contrasting color at the knees and through the suspenders.

Styles for the small boy, like those for grown-up males, remain pretty much the same, the points of difference between one season's styles and another being so small that close-up comparison must usually be made in order to determine whether a garment is of this or last year's vintage.

The female of the species is taught to have an appreciation of styles and style changes from the moment she is large enough to notice anything at all. The coat and wrap line-up offered for little girls this season is especially worth while. One clever little coat for a child of three to five years, recently seen, was of bright red broadcloth, made with straight front and back sections, and sides that flared smartly by having four bias folds or flounces placed one above another. The upper flounce was deep, continuing on up to join the sleeve and form the real side section of the coat.

Smart fur coats for little girls are also seen in abundant numbers this season. Muskrat, caracul, and coney are popular pelts.

PEP IS THE SECRET of everlasting youth! One of the first and most important requisites of "pep," however, is the daily bath! Are you responsible for the lack of vigor and strength in the members of your family because you haven't provided them with ample bathing facilities? A modern bathtub and shower costs as little as any piece of high-grade furniture in the home—and is used much more often! The value of a product should be measured by the service which it gives! There is nothing which adds to a home more than a complete, up-to-date, all-white bathroom outfit. It gives a touch of individuality and superb comfort that cannot be surpassed, regardless of the amount of money you spend in making your home otherwise comfortable. But when installing your bathroom be certain that you are selecting fixtures of lasting quality. Mr. Sheehy, of the GLENDALE PLUMBING COMPANY, 134-136 South Orange street, offers an unusual combination of human skill and the best that the country affords, in his excellent fixtures. And if you have Mr. Sheehy install them for you, too, you'll find that he links with quality, efficiency and durability—and you'll have a bathroom that you may well be proud of, and one that will last you a lifetime! Call Mr. Sheehy at the Glendale Plumping Company, for he'll gladly figure on the cost for you.

YES, REALLY, OLD SANTA'S DAYS ARE NUMBERED! Can you realize that there are only four more shopping days between now and Christmas? It's incredible, isn't it? But in view of that fact I'm endeavoring, in my little journeys from shop to shop, to gather all the suggestions I'm able to find that might be of help to the last-minute shopper! And, there are many in the Glendale shops—they are simply filled with pretty things that savor of the holidays. And you will do well to do all of your shopping right here in our Glendale shops, for I've found that the merchants of Glendale are unusually low of price—and at the same time offering the finest of goods.

But, whatever you do, don't wait until the last minute—go down now and leave your order, for then you'll be sure of securing the right number when you want them! And, it might be as well for you to leave your order for ice cream for Christmas day, too, because then, you know, they'll deliver it when you want it. Then, too, they are making mince and pumpkin pies to order for the holiday trade as well as special plum puddings and fruit cakes! It really doesn't pay to bake them yourself when you can buy such delicious ones at the Fancy Bakery—and at such reasonable prices. Why, do you mean to tell me that you can afford to make pumpkin and mince pies, using the best of materials, for 30 cents each? Indeed not, so you'd better stop in at the Fancy Bakery and order your pies now!

Four prizes were won in those five years, from the first prize down to the fourth, and the famous prize-winning decorator of floats, J. Langley Goodman, is a resident of the city, at 1200 East Colorado boulevard, but the competitions become every year more expensive and elaborate, and also everybody is so busy trying to keep up with the rapid developments of the home town that lack of time is added to the unwillingness to devote a large sum of money to the display.

BURCH DEFENSE IS MAKING GROUND

Attempt Impeach Women Is Seen in Opening Gun

LOS ANGOLES, Dec. 19.—Col. H. B. Hersey, chief of the United States weather bureau here, was the initial witness placed on the stand when the defense of Arthur C. Burch opened its case today to free the accused collegian of the murder of John Belton Kennedy.

Col. Hersey brought with him officil reports showing that the night of August 5, when young Kennedy walked into the now famous "death trap" at Beverly Glen, was dark and moonless.

Mrs. Rowena Wright, a stenographer with a summer cottage in the glen, was next placed on the stand. She testified that she had often noticed darkness settle in the Beverly hills 45 minutes earlier than in theo pen places.

These witnesses laid the ground work for an attack upon the testimony of Mrs. Elizabeth Besenty the prosecution's star witness. Mrs. Besenty had asserted that, as she stood in the door of her Beverly Glen cabin on the night of the murder, she identified the figures of Burch, Kennedy and Madalynne Obenchain moving about in the glen at different intervals.

The defense will contend that because of the intense darkness settling shortly after sunset, it would have been impossible for Mrs. Besenty to have distinguished or idtentified figures at any distance.

It's the fault of the player if an upright piano is a downright nuisance.

WHEN A MAYOR IS INAUGURATED IN ENGLAND HE IS OFFICIALLY WEIGHED

It's a strange system they practice in England on the induction of a mayor into office. Whether it is a part of the old adage, "Weighed and found wanting" or whether it is a desire to see how much weight the mayor will put on during his term of office, it is difficult to understand, but nevertheless the fact remains that in some parts of England it is still part of the inaugural ceremonies to weigh the incoming mayor. The photo shows Mayor G. H. Taylor being duly weighed, according to the ancient custom.

NATHAN'S BRIGHT IDEA

(Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner)

It had been a very successful dinner party, and as the door closed upon the last guest Agnes Colfax came back to the fireplace, where her husband was standing gazing thoughtfully into the paling coals. The glow of pleasure, pride and achievement was upon Agnes's kindly middle-aged face. Everything had gone just to suit her. In the first place she had chosen six people who were able to make each other have a good time. In the next place, Mrs. Ham had been in perfect form as a cateress. And the color scheme she had invented—blue and gold—even Mrs. Saunders had gone wild over it. The reporter, who had looked in for a news item, had been as agreeable as possible. Tomorrow she would read in the Tatler that "Mrse. Nathan White Colfax gave a small dinner party last evening. The guests were Judge and Mrs. Saunders," etc.

Nathan looked up as she approached. Nathan was a tall, slender, black-and-white man, who would have been a poet if he had not been a business man.

"Well," he said, "your party is over."

"What did you think of it?" Agnes put her arm on his shoulder, leaning up on him. After twenty-eight years of married life and four grown-up children—all away from home and the eldest already a parent—their companionship had never lost the zest of courtship. "Tell me what you thought of it, Nate," she pleaded.

"He encircled her with his arm. "You really want to know?" he asked.

"Yes." But she felt a faint misgiving. Nathan surprised her sometimes.

"Well, I think it's a foolish if not sinful exploitation to invite people who have everything to an affair of that kind when there are those who never taste a good meal or smell a flower or see a bright light year in and year out."

Agnes pulled herself together. "I suppose you're right, dear," she replied gently. "What would you suggest?"

"I'd suggest giving a dinner party for those who need it. There's some of that kind in this neighborhood, Agnes."

"Yes, I know it." It was chilling, to say the least, but Agnes laughed. "I'll tell you, Nate," she said, "you ask some people of that sort and I'll entertain them. I'll give them the time of their lives. You'll see."

Nathan hugged her. "All right, I will," he assured her.

Agnes let it rest there. She was not even curious concerning her prospective guests; that was Nathan's part. Her part was to see that they were feted and feasted amply. The idea amused her. She even saw how she might enjoy it. She loved to get up a good meal, to set a nice table, to see people eat and enjoy themselves.

Indeed, she had all the instincts of a true hostess.

Two or three days passed and the little conversation that had passed before the fireplace faded from Agnes's memory, and presumably from Nathan's. But one night Nathan came home feeling tired out and grumpy. The doctor ordered him to bed. Agnes was up with him several times during the night, so that her rest was broken. Toward morning Nathan began to sleep easily and she, too, lost herself in profound slumber. When she awoke she found that it was past 10 o'clock. Nathan was so much better that he did not feel that he required another visit from the doctor. So he telephoned to that effect. He also informed his force at the office that he would not be downtown all day.

"I'll just lounge around in my bathrobe and read and toast my feet," he said. "You look tired yourself, Ag. So you better do the same."

They kept no maid, for Agnes, in spite of their prosperous circumstances, still liked to do her own work. Once a week a woman came in for the day.

After breakfast Nathan took his favorite position in a deep chair before the fireplace and opened a new book. Agnes trailed about in her kimono watering her plants and picking off dead leaves.

It was while she was engaged in this pleasant occupation that she glanced out and saw two old women braving the wind and flying snow. "I believe," she said, "that somebody must have asked the Bumstead sisters out to lunch. They're starting plenty early enough, too."

A sound behind her caused her to turn. Nathan had dropped his book and was sitting upright. "The Bumstead sisters, do you say?" he asked.

"Yes, they're coming down the street. I know they must be going to lunch somewhere or they wouldn't be out on such a day." Nathan clapped his hand to his head. "You'll never forgive me, Ag," he groaned, "but I invited them and forget all about telling you." As Agnes stood silent he went on. "I met them as I was going downstairs yesterday. They were coming out of Stories's grocery with their little market basket. They looked so poor and old and forlorn that I—I up and asked them to come to lunch today. I meant to have told you last night, but I was taken with that grippy cold."

"I wish you had told me," Agnes said, biting her lip with perplexity. "There isn't a thing to eat in the house. You remember, I had planned to spend the day downtown with you and go to the theater this evening"—the bell was ringing. "You'll have to go to the door and let them in, Nate, and keep them entertained till I can put some proper clothes on and get my wits together."

Agnes tried to think what she should do. For the first time in her life she felt helpless. And yet those poor old ladies had come expecting a good meal; they should not be disappointed, and Nathan should not be shamed. Five minutes later she was telephoning the delicatessen a tempting order, to be sent immediately. Then she hurried into the living room and warmly welcomed her guests.

"It was so good of you to ask us to lunch," said Miss Finella. "It is so eldom we are asked out. You can't think what a treat you are giving us."

"Yes, indeed," echoed Miss Sarah, who was so small and wispy and white that she looked like a snowflake. Her blue eyes shone into Agnes's with childish pleasure.

It was half-past 12 before Agnes served lunch. The table wore the finest damask in Agnes's possession, and she had laid out all her best china, silver and crystal glass. With her shears she had shorn her geraniums to make a bouquet. For the rest, the delicatessen store had done its best. These were roast chicken, salad, hot rolls, vegetables, cakes, and ice cream. Agnes's own coffee lent fragrance to the feast.

The little old ladies smacked their lips over the cooking and praised it. "I've always heard you were such a wonderful cook," chirped Miss Sarah.

Agnes dared not meet Nathan's eyes.

After lunch the phonograph amused the guests for an hour or two, and then they went home, taking with them the bouquet, a jar of maraschino cherries, and a loaf of cake for their later delectation.

It was over and Agnes had lived through it. She laughed as she came back to Nathan, after letting her guests out the door.

"Will you ever forgive me?" he pleaded.

"My dear! But I did feel conscience-smitten to think I had to receive them. Some day I'll have them in again, Nate, to a real meal."

Nathan hugged her. "You're some old sport, Ag," he sighed.

RATIFICATION IS POSTPONED BY PARLIAMENT

January 31st Is Day to Reassemble to Act on Pact

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Formal ratification of the Irish peace treaty by parliament was postponed today until January 31. The session was prorogued at 4:50 p. m.

Austen Chamberlain, leader of the conservative party, announced that as the debate in Dublin over the treaty was not likely to be concluded before Christmas eve it was considered undesirable to keep the house in session. Hence, he said, it would be prorogued until January 31. If necessary it can be summoned earlier, he added.

The house of commons today received a communication from King George expressing hope that the Irish peace treaty may speedily become effective. The king thanked parliament for its address to him last week in which both houses approved the treaty and announced their intention of ratifying it.

WATSON HOME IS NEARLY COMPLETE

The residence of Jno. B. Watson, at Elmwood avenue and Sunset Canyon drive, which is being remodeled, is now back on the foundation and Mr. Watson expects to have the work completed by the middle of January. The residence is an artistic type of bungalow, and when the additions, consisting of a large sun parlor on one side and a sleeping room on the opopsite side, are finished, it will provide seven large rooms. The beautiful effect that is being produced in the grounds is largely due to the taste and skill of W. Lee Ray, of Eighth and Orange Grove avenue, who is the engineer, and who is making of the place one of the show places of Burbank.

Wise parents aren't above apologizing to their children.

MRS. M'LENNAN TO SPEAK TONIGHT I. O. O. F. HALL

Final Lecture of Theosophical Series Is to Be Given

"The Near Coming of a Great World Teacher," is announced as the subject of the final lecture of the theosophical series held at Odd Fellows' hall, 111 East Broadway, for the past six weeks. Mrs. W. J. McLennan of Sydney, Australia, who it will be remembered gave the first lecture of this series will present this subject tonight at the same hall.

Mrs. McLennan is well known as a leader in the Order of the Star of the East. This order comprises thousands of members of every religious organization in the world. Their sole aim is the spreading of the belief in the near coming of a great world teacher.

Mrs. McLennan in an interview today gave as some of the reasons for this belief the fact that the solar system has just entered (in 1912) the sign of Aquarius. It takes about 2024 years to pass through a sign and hitherto a great teacher has always come shortly after this event. Christ was the last great Avator and He came when we entered the sign of Pisces.

In certain countries of the East particularly Persia, prophets have appeared announcing the coming of one greater than they. The universal need of a restatement of the old truths and the expectation of all religions that their founder will some time reappear.

Whether you can agree with Mrs. McLennan or not the lecture will be well worth while and she extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend.

BACK TO CALVARY HEARD ON SUNDAY

Rev. Edmonds Gives Very Able Address Sunday Morning

The sermon at the Presbyterian church by Rev. W. E. Edmonds in the series, "Back to Christ," was upon the theme "Back to Calvary"; the text from I Cor. 1:18: "The preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God."

We are living in an age of unrest, almost intoxication, which has gone beyond the safety mark. The old truths seem to many inadequate to meet 'advanced thought.' But some things are unchangeable in the very nature of the case. First, last and all the time, truth is authentic; and you don't dare juggle with it.

Now, we are brought face to face with the Christ of Calvary. We want to be sure that our Christ is the same. They talk about new aspects of truth, and re-shaping the message for this day. Change it? Christ has no new revelation, no new terms of salvation. "It is finished;" there is no other message.

They beautifully speak of Christ as our example; but they say He could not assume our guilt and suffer its penalty. But Christ's blood just means His life substituted and given for us on the cross; and we are acquitted of the guilt imputed to Him. He voluntarily took our sin and shame; and the Father looks on us through Him, and is going to present us without blemish. He brings us victory! The only way we can get it is by way of the cross. You cannot look at Calvary and go out to live a little, selfish life.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder troubles you.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

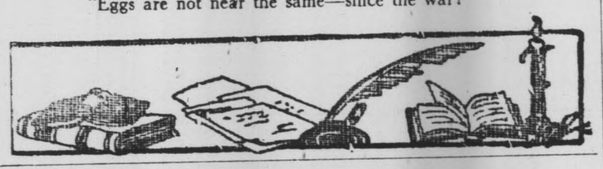
SINCE THE WAR

Perhaps you have noticed the things that I tell,
In the course of your shopping forays;
There's nothing at all seems to be made as well
As it was in the ante-war days.
And what you may get, if it's not up to snuff,
Not the thing that you've been looking for,
This all-meaning phrase seems quite reaso enough:
"It's not near the same—since the war!"

If the ice melts too fast, as sometimes it may do
And I kick, as my privilege is,
I get when my hot ebullitions are through
The same old reply to my quiz.
The ice-man will say with an innocent look,
As he stops by the open back door
And tears his right coupon from out of my book:
"Oh, ice is not the same—since the war!"

If I send to my poulterer, say, for a hen,
To make fricasseed chicken, my ire
Arises to find it still rubbery when
It has been half a day on the fire.
So I say to the poulterer: "That fricassee
Of chicken was tough, and I'm sore.
And with ease born of practice he says back to me:
"Hens are not near the same—since the war."

And if in the eating place I get some eggs
That are, well, that are open to doubt,
The unctuous waiter removes them and begs
My pardon and takes the eggs out.
And when he returns, as he will after while,
He glosses my hurt feelings o'er
With that same old excuse and that wan, sickly smile:
"Eggs are not near the same—since the war!"



CHRISTIAN CHURCH HAD BIG SUNDAY

Rev. C. A. Cole Inspires Men of Church to Great Things

Sunday was a wonderful day in the history of the Central Christian church. The old building, located securely on its new foundation was re-occupied, after six Sundays in the bungalow, and Rev. C. A. Cole preached a heart-searching sermon on the "Stewardship of Self, Substance and Money." At the close, the 215 men who had been selected to conduct the annual "every member canvass to secure pledges to meet the budget for 1922 current expenses $4700, and for benevolences $1325, were called to the front and consecrated to the task. In the afternoon, despite the pouring rain, which proved to be a great blessing, keeping everybody else at home, these men sallied forth to their task. The report made at the Sunday evening service showed that, instead of lacking several hundred dollars of the required sum, as had been the invariable rule in the past, an amount more than $500 in excess of the budget figures had been pledged. This will be raised to almost $1000 in excess when all the returns are in; this, in the face of the heavy demands on the congregation, necessitated by the $75,000 building project on hand.

The evening service was devoted to some lessons from the life and work of the Apostle Paul.

SUPREME COURT HITS FLOOR MEN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The supreme court today decided for the government in its anti-trust suit against 329 firms and individuals that are members of the American Hardwood Manufacturers' association.

"The open competition plan" practiced by the association violates the Sherman law, the supreme court held. The primary purpose of the "plan," the court held, was to restrict lumber production. The decision upholds the judgment of lower courts in Tennessee.

It's so much pleasanter to congratulate a man on his success than it is to sympathize with him in his misfortune.

DICKENS' NOVEL STORY SEEN HERE

Our Mutual Friend Continues to Draw Big Crowds

"Our Mutual Friend," one of the most unusual photo-dramas movie fans of Glendale have had the good fortune to view in many months, continues to draw hundreds to the Glendale theatre. This human visualization of Dickens' last complete novel, which many critics say is the greatest of all his masterly writings, seems to have struck a responsive chord with the moving picture public in every city where it has been shown.

"Our Mutual Friend" proves an effective retort to the fallacious belief that movie patrons still prefer the "hard-boiled" type of picture to screen versions of famous classics.

Long after the final showing of "Our Mutual Friend" this fascinating story of romance and mystery will prove an interesting subject for discussion among the better class of people of this city.

In congratulating the management of the local theatre on producing such a splendid program, the Daily Press feels that it voices the feeling of all picture lovers toward such pictures as "Our Mutual Friend."

It has romance, murder, mystery, thrills and all the elements of a perfect "movie" and yet it delights those who frequently condemn the same elements when poorly handled. "Our Mutual Friend proves that real classics can be loved by those who love blood and thunder, as well as those who love the opera, providing the classics are intelligently visualized.

TWENTY AUTOS IN REVIEW PARADE

About twenty machines were in line for the automobile parade to view the two sites proposed for the prospective high school, Saturday afternoon. They carried about one hundred passengers who appeared to be much impressed with what they saw and who doubtless have a much better idea of the locations of the sites and their merits than before the trip. Mr. Elrod, the real estate operator, and Mrs. M. L. Tight had charge of the parade.

While the average man realizes that his sins will find him out sooner or later, he is willing to bet they won't.

Just Between Ourselves

By DELLA E. STEWART

The world has not lacked for dire prophecies during the post-war years. Revolutions, upheavals of industry, general strikes; these are but a tithe of the whole number of terrible predictions. We who do not pretend to the gift of prophecy have been more or less moved by all these, in spite of our deterring common-sense. We have worried and fretted openly and helped to spread the gloom blanket on all.

But a most cheering aspect, and one which we need not to overlook, is that a great share of the dire predictions failed to materialize. The terrible happenings have been many, but far from filling the predictions. We have worried needlessly in so many cases. We have lost much thought and nerve force for accomplishment. We have made ourselves just so much less able to grapple with the little daily problems of our lives. We have embittered in just the degree we worried, the lives of those about it, and made their problems of life just so much the greater.

And the most pitiful part of the whole is that all our worry did not accomplish one atom of good. It averted no calamity, it brought about no good. It was the most senseless way we can imagine in which to meet life. Why can't we learn what life tries so hard to teach us?

There's a wise foresight and a logical way of reasoning cause from effect that all of us need to guide us over the rough places. But these are in no way related to the foolish worry that limits our outlook, and restricts our strength and faith for real accomplishment. If we must be prophets, let's be prophets of cheer!

BUILDING LOAN IS GREAT BOOSTER FOR GLENDALE

F. H. Vesper Tells of Advantages Offered by Such Ass'n.

"I was very glad to see a building and loan association come to Glendale, and I feel that there are few institutions that are helping to build up Glendale as is this one," said F. H. Vesper, who has been boosting for Glendale the past 15 years. For years Mr. Vesper was president of the Bank of Glendale and is one of the most prominent citizens of Glendale.

"I know of many instances where young and old folks have been helped to home ownership by organizations of this character. They have thereby been put on a rent-saving basis and have been shown how to save the money they would otherwise have spent in one way or another.

"There is one feature in the operation of this organization that I think is of unusual merit, and that is the savings feature. This organization has, I understand, a savings feature to fit every pocketbook. For the fellow who wishes to invest a given sum for a given length of time, there is a special department. The man who desires to invest whatever he can save from time to time is also taken care of, as is also the person who wishes to save a given amount each month. A very commendable thing about the latter feature is that it encourages automatic saving, which is greatly to be desired.

"I believe the building and loan association is as safe for the investor as is any other savings organization. It is safe-guarded by state laws in the most rigid manner. I know whereof I speak for I was at one time an official of an institution of this kind back in Iowa. The building loan is not a competitor of the banks, for the money that is paid into the building and loan is immediately loaned out for home building purposes and soon finds its way, through the various workmen employed in constructing the homes, back to the banks.

I believe that from every angle the building and loan institution is a benefit to any community. It encourages thrift through its safeguarded investment department and assists in the upbuilding of the community by loaning out for building purposes the money that is invested in the institution by the people of the town or city."

THREE THINGS TO MAKE MAN GREAT

Rev. Harley Preston Delivers Fine Serman on Sunday

Following is the sermon, in part, of Rev. Harley G. Preston, pastor of the Pacific Avenue Methodist church, delivered Sunday:

"I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision."

There are three things necessary to make a man great: First, strength and purity of character; second, intelligence of a high order; and third, influence, permanent, extensive and effective.

Paul was an example of all three of these qualifications.

First, let us consider what Paul was before conversion and the steps that were necessary to that conversion. All great lights depend upon four things.

Now as to heredity. Paul was of the tribe of Benjamin. He was a Hebrew of the Hebrews. We talk of royal blood. We like to trace our ancestry back and back and back, and stop at a king or otherwise great man, but we don't like to talk about the black sheep. No, blood is not everything, but a clean, Godly ancestry is the greatest heritage a child can receive outside the kingdom of God. Oliver Wendell Holmes said that a baby's training should begin 100 years before it was born.

As to environment, Paul was from the city of Tarsus, no mean city, and was brought up in the atmosphere of cultured Greek. Environment is very important, indeed, and we must make it the best possible for ourselves and children, but environment is not everything. A young man who was a college student went to the hills of New England and, wandering among the trees and rocks where Daniel Webster used to roam, remarked to a good old native of the place, "Well, it is no wonder that Daniel Webster was what he was; such a beautiful environment as this would make any man great." The old native, lowering his spectacles, said in reply, "Yes, 'tis beautiful hereabouts, and a good many young fellows like yourself have wandered through here, but among them all, there has been only ONE Daniel Webster."

Education. Paul did not underestimate education. Neither should we. I do not think we are. We should always have a thirst for knowledge. Paul himself exhorts Timothy to "study to show himself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." And Paul had all the wisdom of the Greeks, and was trained in Hebrew under Gamaliel.

A new world opens up to the man converted. The new standard was to "love the Lord with all thy heart, mind, soul and strength, and thy neighbor as thyself."

You know it isn't hard to love one's self. That is one trouble with the world today, too much love for self and too little for others. But sometimes we love ourselves in a mighty mean way, and one may love his neighbor in the same manner.

Jesus said: "Love one another as I have loved you." Ill. C. of I. 574.
